City Intelligence.

Scenes in the Five Points.—On Friday night last our reporter visited the Five Points, in company with several Southern gentlemen, who were anxious to witness all the tall sights which this great city of Gotham affords—built up, as it is, from the highest to the lowest classes of society. Arriving on the ground called the Five Points, we found a large gas lamp which is the great beauty of the spot of police, in order to enlighten that neighborhood, and endeavor, if possible to throw a light on some of the rascality practised by the inhabitants of that region. The origin of the Five Points, is from the fact of there being five streets meeting at this point, which forms an admirable opportunity for the thief to escape...
